

How my ESL classes are helping me to reach my goals
By Nian Shi (Nancy)

A man said “Life is a journey from where you are to where you want to be.” To have my own business is one of my goals. ESL study is the first step in achieving this goal. It’s very important. However, English is not an easy nut to crack. To improve my listening and speaking, firstly, I have to enlarge my vocabulary. Practice makes perfect, and the best way is to listen to the radio every day. Secondly, I must overcome timidity, open my mouth, speak out, and keep courage. Lastly, speak more. It is a good way to speak English with partners. In addition, attach great importance to imitation in the course. Imitate the speakers’ pronunciation, tone and so on. What’s more, participate in activities are very helpful. After ESL, I will have a good grasp of English and then I can study management with fewer language barriers. When I finish my degree courses, I’ll try to get more experiences from others and prepare for my own business. I believe I can do it.

NIAN SHI (Nancy)
COMMUNICATION 2, F08B
Nov , 2008