

A International Women's Day

Monday, March 8, 2010

12:00 to 2:00 pm

Building 355, Room 211

Kim Anderson "Revisiting the Power of Old Ladies" through Cree, Métis and Ojibway Oral History

Kim is a Cree/Métis researcher, writer and educator. She has spent fifteen years conducting Aboriginal social and health policy research, publishing in the areas of Aboriginal women's health, Aboriginal women's leadership and motherhood. She has also published fiction and poetry in various literary journals. Kim works out of the University of Guelph where she is Adjunct Faculty in the Department of Women's Studies.

Among her publications is her book: A Recognition of Being: Re-Constructing Native Womanhood. (2000, Sumach Press)

Followed by: Panel Discussion by VIU Elders-in-Residence

This event is co-sponsored by:

- Department of First Nations Studies
- VIU Faculty Association
- Status of Women Committee
- Human Rights Committee
- Office of Aboriginal Education
- BCGEU, Local 702

Aboriginal Awareness Week