STATEMENT:

Vancouver Island University will comply with all applicable requirements of the Criminal Records Review Act and its regulations. Accordingly, all students registered in programs with access to children under 19 years of age or vulnerable adults (as defined by the Family Relations Act), must meet the requirements and regulations of the Criminal Records Review Act.

Under Sections 7 and 8 of the Criminal Records Review Act, post-secondary institutions are exempt from the general duty of employers to ensure employees working with “children” have criminal records checks – except with regard to employees working in child care facilities operated by the post-secondary institutions.
