Child and Youth Care

2-year Diploma Program

Fee Category: I

Note: VIU also offers a Child and Youth Care First Nations Diploma and a Bachelor Arts, Child and Youth Care Degree.

The Program

The two-year Child and Youth Care diploma program prepares students to be skilled in working with individuals, their families and small groups across a variety of practice settings. General practice in these settings calls for individuals who are willing and able to work cooperatively with other community professionals, and in a variety of multi-disciplinary settings (schools, community, corrections facilities, residential settings).

The program is offered on a full-time as well as a part-time basis to accommodate practitioners working in the child and youth care field. Students who successfully complete the two-year program, including 300 hours of practicum, will be eligible for VIU's Diploma in Child and Youth Care.

VIU also offers a Bachelor of Arts in Child and Youth Care

A free information session is usually held in February for programs beginning the following September. Attendance is highly recommended. Check with the Advising Centre for dates and times, 250-740-6410, or visit viu.ca/infosessions.

Career Opportunities

Graduates of the program are prepared for the general practice of child and youth care work in community and residential settings across Canada.

Admission Requirements

Enrolment in the Child and Youth Care Diploma program at VIU is limited. Students who wish to take individual courses without being admitted to the program may do so where space is available and when prerequisites have been completed. Students who take courses in Child and Youth Care without being formally admitted into the program are not guaranteed entry into the program. Students are encouraged to explore the program with an Advisor before pursuing application.
