Exploratory University Studies (EXPO) Programs

Associate Degree

Credential:

Associate Degree

The Program

Associate degrees are awarded to students who complete at least 60 credits of university program courses, and obtain an average overall grade of "C" (calculated on all courses counting toward the Associate degree), as well as meeting the additional requirements for each associate degree. Students who qualify for an associate degree must submit an application to graduate. Applications are available from your online student record. Further information about the application process can be found on the Apply to Graduate page.
